

CUT-OFF PROPOSED TO EASE SALEM TRAFFIC

What Is Salem's Problem On Water? Here Are The Facts

BY DON BEATTIE

Just how serious is the water shortage in Salem? Is the city in danger of an immediate shortage on supply? Will the shortage hit suddenly? What's causing it? Is the supply in the present wells dwindling? Can't more wells be drilled and solve the situation? All those—and dozens more—are questions you're hearing every day in Salem about water. They're not easily answered, either, for the story on the situation is a long, and at times a complex one. It's not generally understood, either.

As a matter of fact, Salem's problem is one of long duration. It's one that was appreciated at least 28 years ago, when the city first had an engineering survey made for a possible surface supply. Since that time the problem has arisen publicly time and time again and actually four surveys have been made.

No concrete action toward the surface goal, wherever it may eventually be, had been accomplished until a few years ago when the water reservoir was constructed southwest of the city just off Stewart road.

City council has again been stirred to action, and this time it appears that something definite in the way of a long-range program will have to be worked out. It's 20 years later, but the problem is actually becoming so acute—as later figures will point out—that something must be done and done quickly.

Water is not going to be secured, surface or otherwise, in any short period of time. The long-range program needed to meet Salem's permanent needs will require two or three, possibly four, to five years, to achieve.

Why has the problem become so acute now? The reason is simply explained in an examination of water usage in Salem (as illustrated on the chart with this story) over the period since 1944, when the large increases really began to appear.

For instance: In 1944 the average daily usage, based on the total used in a year divided by 365 days, was 980,000 gallons.

In 1945 that daily average was up to 1,050,000 gallons.

In 1946 it jumped to 1,200,000 gallons.

By the close of 1948, the average was 1,580,000 gallons and the trend has continued upward, with a minor leveling off, through the first two months of 1949.

Those with minds geared to analysis of charts will quickly note that Water usage in Salem, on a monthly and daily average, is shown in the chart above from 1944 through the end of 1948. The dotted line on the graph shows the average usage per month. The solid line traces the daily average by months in the space allotted to each year. By noting the indentations within a year's bracket on the solid line you can figure, from left to right, the usage each month during that year.

The figures on the right side of the chart indicate millions of gallons and the fractions thereof. The danger point for Salem's supply is considered 1.3 millions. The "pull" first exceeded that in 1946 and has been rising since.

Actual "peak" days are not accurately shown here, because this graph is based on averages, including low usage days such as Saturday and Sunday.

East Liverpool-Chester Bridge To Be Toll-Free

(AP)—The East Liverpool-Chester highway bridge will be toll-free late in 1949. Ray T. Palmer, secretary of the Ohio Bridge commission, told members of the Rotary club here last night.

Palmer said only $675,000 remains outstanding in bonds and $100,000 of this will be paid off April 1. The commission retired $400,000 of indebtedness in 1948 and "with net profits running ahead of last year, it is crystal clear that tolls will be removed in 1950," he said.

The East Liverpool bridge, the last state-owned bridge still under toll, was purchased in 1934 for $2,143,000. The Sandusky Bay bridge, bought for $1,925,000, and the Pomfret-Mason bridge, costing $350,000, were made toll-free in 1948. The Steubenville-Weirton bridge, bought for $1,900,000, was free in 1947.

fields. Officials know that infiltration into the water bearing rock is frequently exceeded by Salem's long, steady pumping.

One engineer put it this way, "If you keep up at this rate of increase, or even at the average rate of the last few years, your position will be precarious."

Salem is an exceptionally hard city to supply with water for its location. It is like a house high on a hill. All the available water runs away from it, down the sides of the slope, and must be pulled back to Salem from lower sources.

Last year the city's wells of water in air conditioning units were forced to shut off their systems during part of the summer. This was brought about by an unusual usage in the city.

The usage last year was unusual in that February, usually one of the lighter months, equalled almost the previous September in total water use. May, 1948, to go further, was almost a higher usage month than August, usually the peak month, of the year before.

This early drain on supply in 1948 hit the city hard and forced the shut-down in later months.

Industrial usage accounts for half of Salem's pull each day. At least that is as close an estimate as officials can make. Some industries are pumping a part of their own factory needs, but these fields, too, are inadequate and are not figured in the city usage totals.

More alarming even than the daily average figures over a year ago is the fact that Salem actually goes over the two million a day figure in usage several days a week in present times. The slack in use on Saturdays and Sundays accounts for the evening up of the figures.

It is hard to estimate exactly which are the peak days, however, for water that is pumped into the reservoir system on a Friday may not be actually used in the city until the following Monday.

The dangers inherent in heavy water usage in the case of a large

550 View Spring Styles In Show Of Mothers Club

Glamorous spring clothes in the newest tones and materials, for tots, teenagers, juniors and adults were modeled at the Easter Parade style show Tuesday evening in the Masonic temple.

Sponsored by the Progressive Mothers club, in cooperation with Salem merchants, the four-part program was presented to an overflow crowd of 550 persons.

The proceeds will benefit the Girl Scout troop "mothered" by the club. Mrs. Frederick S. Barkhoff, Jr., and Mrs. Lester Caplan were narrators for the numbers, which were presented in a beautiful spring setting of greenery and forsythia. Highlighting the stage decorations was a large silhouette of an old-fashioned girl. The same design made the attractive green and yellow program covers.

Mrs. William Greene, president, gave the welcome and expressed appreciation of those who assisted. Mrs. Alda Hindman supplied the musical background for the show.

Misses Wilma Firestone and Joan Smith contributed two accordion duets. "Cruising Down The River" and "The Gay Group."

Children of the club members displayed the "small fry" tots and almost stole the show.

The lovely teenagers and junior clothes were modeled by Polly Alies, Shirley Denchka, Betty Jane Gray, Joan Smith, Mrs. Carroll Greene and Mrs. Robert Schuck.

Twenty-eight adults modeled the charming formal, afternoon gowns, suits, coats, hats, etc.

Miss Donna Lou Getz sang "Through The Years" and "Because" prior to the presentation of the "wedding bells." She was accompanied by Mrs. Steven Goshorn.

The bridal party scene climaxed the parade.

Miss Marilyn Miller in the role of bride, appeared in an exquisite gown of shimmering satin, sheer yoke, bias collar of satin, with French Chantilly lace trim corded scalloped boue and a full skirt with a court train. She carried white flowers showered with greenery.

JOBLESS PAY BILL PASSED BY OHIOANS

Senate Democrats Win, But Lose On Liquor License Proposal

BY REED SMITH

COLUMBUS, March 23—(AP)—Ohio senate Democrats today chalked up a victory and a defeat on the administration's legislative scorecard.

They got enough help from Republicans to pass a liberalized unemployment compensation benefit bill Tuesday 18 to 12.

But they couldn't muster enough strength against solid GOP opposition to swing a 50 percent increase for liquor license fees.

The liquor fee bill headed back to the rules committee. Two postponements in a try for enough votes to save it had failed. Sponsors said it might be brought out later.

The action was regarded as a setback for Gov. Frank J. Lausche. He urged the fee increase to get nearly $4,000,000 more for local governments.

The house voted 90 to 34 to list quail as game birds for propagation for ten years. The idea is to increase their numbers so they can be hunted afterwards. The controversial bill now goes to the senate where a similar measure died two years ago.

Three Democrats voted against the jobless pay bill. But two Republicans who supported it provided one more vote than the 17 needed for passage.

Sen. Tom W. Jones (R-Meigs), 75, serving his 13th legislative term, suffered a heart attack during the heated debate. He was taken to Grant hospital. His condition was improved this morning.

The benefit bill by Sens. Emmett R. Guthrie (D-Coshocton) and Howard M. Metzger (D-Cuyahoga) had undergone a series of lightening revisions at Lausche's insistence.

"Pretty Fair Package" Labor leaders contended it wasn't liberal enough but conceded privately it was a "pretty fair package."

Major provisions would: Boost top benefits from $21 for 22 weeks to $25 for 26 weeks. Allow $2.50 a week for dependent children to a maximum of $5.

Out the current two-week waiting period to one week. Qualify lakes seamen for benefits in half their 12-week off-season period.

Restrict benefits to two-thirds of a worker's base period pay. Tighten taxes against benefits to strikers.

Prevent Florida "vacations" financed with benefit checks. Require workers to earn $240 in 14 weeks of a base period to qualify for benefits. The requirement now is $180 in 20 weeks.

Guthrie said the changes would not increase employer rates. Payments for dependent children of jobless workers would come out of a pool built up from employer penalties, he explained.

High spot of the debate was a motion by Sen. Roscoe R. Walcutt (R-Franklin), minority leader, to adjourn.

Sen. Margaret A. Mahoney (D-Cuyahoga), majority leader who customarily moves to adjourn, stalked to Walcutt's desk across the chamber.

After an animated discussion senators voted 17 to 15 to continue.

Mineral Ridge Youth On 18-Day Water Fast

Watt Brown, 22, of nearby Mineral Ridge, has lost 10 pounds in a fast he refuses to explain. He said only that "if I should do it, Church officials said Brown has undergone other fasts, the longest of which was seven days."

How Much Freedom of Choice?

The issue before the senate and the people in the Atlantic pact is not whether to agree to it or reject it. That decision already has been made. Like most major decisions, it was determined by events beyond the control of this country. All that remains to be decided is how to come to the best possible terms with reality.

The United States has had no freedom of choice in its efforts to preserve stability since the war—no more freedom than it had in its efforts to defeat the Axis powers. The decision to go to war was made not by the United States but by Japan, Germany and Italy. The decision to seek collective security among the Atlantic nations was forced by the Soviet union's prior decision to create insecurity among the Atlantic nations.

There are still Americans, however, who talk about the defense of this country in the last war as if there had been an alternative. There will be Americans who will talk about the Atlantic pact as if there were an alternative. They should be urged to define what the alternative is. When they have finished making their objections, they should be asked to declare whether or not, in view of their objections, they think the United States should back out of the Atlantic pact. It is unlikely that any of them believe this country has that much freedom of choice left in a world where great decisions are dictated by realities.

One Twitch Of An Eyebrow

A coal miner, a railroad, or anyone else whose freedom has been cut off by the personal decision of John L. Lewis is supposed to accept his lot cheerfully. The Truman administration says this is all right and everybody should be happy about it.

Yet there must be, even among the 100 percent backers of the Lewis dictatorship in the coal industry, an occasional stirring of personal doubt about a stoppage of coal production as a demonstration of personal power. Mr. Lewis, of course, has nothing to lose. His salary doesn't stop when his union quits work.

There is general agreement among observers that Mr. Lewis hopes to curtail the supply of coal above ground as preparation for negotiations over a new contract with operators. This is obviously to the interest of some of the operators too; it helps to keep up the price of coal.

Yet, if operators were to agree to do the same thing to keep up the price of coal, they would be open to a charge of conspiracy under federal anti-trust laws. Those laws reflect the determination of the American people to prevent the misuse of economic power against the public interest.

But in their palmy days the would-be monopolists of big business never dreamed of stopping coal production with one twitch of a bushy eyebrow. That kind of monopoly is reserved to a handful of labor camps, all hoping to be as powerful some day as the president of United Mine Workers.

It's Only Money

If it costs $640,000,000 to appease 16 non-operating unions for the first year under the latest wage and hour settlement, railroads must raise the money. And it's a fair bet that some of them won't be able to do it.

The latest settlement, piled on top of all the others made since the late Thirties, brings railroad wages up to 110 percent of their prewar level. The introduction of the 40-hour week alone means about a 20 percent increase in the wage bill, which accounts for about 60 percent of railroad operating costs.

Not all railroads can handle this. Rate increases are approaching and in some cases have passed the point of diminishing return; i.e., the point at which an additional increase drive business to trucks, canals, planes, etc. While some added wage costs can be offset by better machinery and methods, that is only another way of saying it can be offset by using fewer railroad workers. The toughest reality in railroad business today is the downward trend in rail traffic. It was a risky time to put weak railroads over the barrel for a huge wage increase.

Naturally, the railroad unions are officially happy about getting more money; that's the way their negotiators held their jobs—by getting more money. Perhaps the public should be happy too. But union negotiators getting more money, either by their own persuasion or through the intercession of laws and government commissions, is an old story now. Everybody is waiting more or less breathlessly to see how it ends. It's apparent that the blue fairy isn't everything he was cracked up to be when the story started.

Jobless Engineers?

Two members of the Hoover commission, Senator McClellan of Arkansas and former Congressman Menasco of Alabama, have taken issue with the commission's recommendation that civilian functions of the Army Corps of Engineers be transferred to the Interior department.

Their objections, we believe, deserve serious consideration. The Corps of Engineers is a skillful, experienced organization. There has been no quarrel with its efficiency. Its civilian functions, such as flood control and river and harbor development, contribute to the country's development at the same time that they provide peacetime training.

A transfer of those functions would add to government labor costs. It would reduce the Corps of Engineers and impair its effectiveness in a military emergency.

It would seem that there is a valid objection to transferring them to the commission's list of generally wise and valuable proposals.

For Thursday, March 24

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

INITIATIVE, forthright attack, well-laid and executed plans and projects may be projected into new heights of enterprise and accomplishments under current sidereal operations, with promise of desired support and substantial endorsement from those in influential places.

Rewards and emoluments are in sight for worthy propositions, especially in new or untried lines. Personal, professional or social factors should be tactfully utilized. But be prepared for a strange or breathtaking debacle in intimate or romantic ties.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, have the assurance of an outstanding coup during the year, in which initiative, ingenuity, fresh techniques of major significance, may be pushed by strenuous effort, determination, and well-organized and executed details.

High places are to be counted upon for capital, rewards and friendly recognition. The social or professional assets are to be used, but be alert to some unusual, spectacular or dramatic adventure of an emotional or romantic nature. Elopements, separations or singular experiences materialize under such astral sign.

A child born on this day has splendid faculties, talents, energies and traits of character for outstanding success in life.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

BY WALTER KIBERNAN

Can't figure John Lewis organizing cab drivers? It's not like him to tie up with anyone who will put him in a back seat.

Must be something he thought up on vacation: last time he took two weeks off he organized milk maids.

But it was logical... milk comes from cows, cows eat hay, hay grows in the earth, the earth contains minerals, minerals are mined... welcome to the UMW!

And for New York it would be a break to have United Mine Worker taxi drivers. We've tried for years to find a quick route across town... now we can get a driver who will dig one.

But will it be an accident or a jurisdictional dispute when a UMW cab and an AFT truck collide with a Transport Workers Union bus?

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

The Child With Poor Appetite

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

One of the most frequent complaints for which children are brought to the doctor is lack of appetite. Associated with this lack of appetite is refusal to chew, refusal to take solid food, dawdling, and vomiting. Often, the feeding difficulty is associated with other problems, such as sleep disturbances, trouble with bowel and bladder training, and thumb-sucking.

Fortunately, there are a number of things which can be done to keep poor appetite from developing.

Ready to Learn

To begin with, adults should not attempt to rush children in their development. When the child is ready to learn, he should be helped, but such things as trying to teach the child to hold his own bottle before he is ready or to drink from a cup before the proper time are often factors in producing appetite troubles.

It is known that during the end of the first year a baby's appetite often decreases. When this happens, the amount of food offered should be lessened. It is much better to have a child ask for more food than for him to refuse to eat all that is served to him.

Food should be served attractively. There should be a variety of foods and, of course, they should be properly cooked. Eating should and can be made a pleasure and not a duty.

It should be remembered that no one food is absolutely necessary for a baby's well-being. For practically every good food there is some substitute.

Most children like meat and fruit, milk, bread and butter. They often tend to refuse cereals, cooked vegetables, and soup. Often, a child will eat raw vegetables and refuse cooked ones, but this should cause no concern. The child should be allowed some choice of foods.

Child's Independence

Satisfactory home conditions are also important. There should be affection, encouragement, and appreciation of the child's independence. The child should not be scolded at mealtimes, nor should he be shouted at while eating. In proper surroundings, the problem of poor appetite does not occur nearly so often.

Too rigid feeding schedules, poor training, and emotional upsets are among the important factors in producing poor appetite, and they should be strictly avoided. Every one in a while parents should check themselves just to see how often they lose their tempers during mealtimes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

T. S.: If pernicious anemia damages the nerves, will this cause death or loss of the mind?

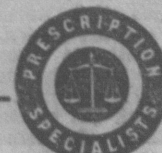

Answer: The damage produced to the nervous system by pernicious anemia will not cause insanity, nor is it fatal. However, pernicious anemia should be kept under constant treatment so as to prevent further damage to the nervous system.

Letters to Dr. Bundesen should be addressed in care of 235 E. 45th St., New York City.

BILL WOULD LIMIT HOURS FOR POLICE, FIRE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS, March 23—(UP)—

Two bills regulating the hours worked by police and firemen were held over another week today by the house committee on organization of state government so that cities could present information showing the cost of the proposals.

Rep. Kenneth A. Robinson, (R) of Marion made the motion to delay committee action on the bills after the policemen's bill was amended to provide for a 44-hour work week, except for emergency and court duty, instead of 40 as originally contemplated in the bill.

Robinson declared that a bill to set up a 63-hour work week for firemen in Marion would cost that city $60,000.

"I don't want to force every city in the state to put on a payroll tax," Robinson said.

The 44-hour work week for policemen was provided for in an amendment brought before the committee by Rep. Bishop Kilpatrick, (D) of Warren.

File Water Suit

YOUNGSTOWN, March 23—(AP)—

The Ohio Water Service Co. today filed a declaratory judgment suit in common pleas court here, saying the Mahoning Valley sanitary district and its member cities have no right to sell water outside of their limits.

The sanitary district was created Feb. 2, 1936, to supply domestic water to Youngstown and Niles. In February, 1944, the sanitary district asked the court for permission to sell water to McDonald. The Ohio Water Service Co. filed a protest at the time. The company also charges Youngstown has sold water to other subdivisions not inside the district.

Stephen Foster is said to have written "My Old Kentucky Home" at Federal Hill, near Bardstown, Ky. The house has been preserved as a memorial and the surrounding estate has been made into a state park.

Come in and see "The Car Designed With YOU in Mind"

It's BRAND-NEW... so new that there aren't many on the streets yet. But already it's a tremendous success. And it's easy enough to see why.

Everybody wants a smart, good-looking modern car. But most of us don't want to pay a penalty for being modern. We want more room... more comfort... more visibility... not less.

That's where De Soto scores. It's got those long, low lines. But you don't have to wriggle into it. It has big wide doors. Plenty of headroom, too. The roof won't scrape your hat, no matter where you sit. It's roomier than ever.

It's no use having bigger windows and windshield unless you can see out of them. In the new De Soto you can... because you're sitting on chair-high seats. Even a short person can see over the steering wheel. Even a six-footer won't hit his knees on it.

You don't have to enlarge your garage to hold the new De Soto. You can still change a tire yourself. And a dent in the fender doesn't mean an expensive body repair job. Come in and see this wonderful car that lets you drive without shifting. Compare it with any other at any price. Then decide.

Hundreds Of Volunteers Seek Foreign Legion Entry

BY CARL HARTMAN
PARIS, March 23—(AP)—Despite serious losses in the Indo-China fighting, French army authorities are turning away hundreds of volunteers for the romantic Foreign Legion.

When an American ex-sailor recently accused the legion of shaming him, a defense ministry spokesman commented:

"We have so many people who want to get into the Legion that we don't have to shanghai anybody."

Most of the volunteers are German, as are some 6,000 of the unit's 20,000 total strength. The Legion has its biggest recruiting post at Kehl, in the French occupation zone of Germany.

"We can take our pick," said the spokesman, a former officer of the Legion who would give all the type-writers in the ministry to get back. "So we enlist only the best—experienced professionals, technicians and whatever specialists we happen to need."

The professional standards of the Legion have always inspired respect in military-minded Germany, and during the last war a lot of Germans got a taste of desert life. The Legion would include even more Germans, except that the French authorities have decided that it ought not to have more than 30 per cent of any one nationality.

After the Germans, Spaniards are the most numerous in the Legion. Many of them are veterans of both sides of the Spanish civil war. The Marseille area, where the Legion has an important recruiting post, is a center for Spanish Republicans.

Despite its name, the foreign Legion is not barred to Frenchmen. Contrary to legend, there is only a handful of British and Americans.

"But a large proportion of them write books," the ministry spokesman said, "and quite a few desert."

Before World War II, Czarist Russians were a mainstay of the Legion. Those who were in have been permitted to stay, but no new Russians, either white or red, are taken now.

About half the Legion's strength is in North Africa, its traditional stamping-ground. Some of the old color disappeared after the war, when the two cavalry regiments were mechanized. Only one "mounted company," which comes under the head of infantry, remains. The Legion saw plenty of action in World War II, both in Africa and Europe. For a time there were two French Foreign Legions, one loyal to the Vichy government and one to the fighting French of Gen. Charles De Gaulle. By the time France was liberated, however, they were united again.

Now the Foreign Legion gets the tough assignments in Indo-

China where Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh has been fighting the French for two years. France holds the big towns and main roads, but guerrillas control much of the country and make costly raids. This kind of fighting is the Legion's meat, but its accomplishments are still military secrets.

Some 200 to 300 recruits are accepted monthly, on the average. The old rule still goes—the new Legionnaire can call himself whatever he pleases and no questions asked. The Legion command, however, takes fingerprints and measurements and makes an investigation to be sure that neither war criminals nor any other kind of criminal uses the Legion as a hide-out.

A second and even more thorough investigation takes place when the new Legionnaire reaches African headquarters at Sidi Bel-Abbes. Often the Legion's file on private John Smith carries his real name and quite a bit about him that he would rather not be known.

His modest pay—six francs (two cents) a day for a truck private and eight francs for a corporal—remains the same. Besides this, of course, the Legionnaire is equipped, lodged and fed somewhat better than the average soldier.

Even the private in the Foreign Legion is distinguished by his white kepi, the visored cylindrical cap reserved to officers in other units. The Legion takes particular pride in its messes. An officer inspects the kitchen before each meal, and always finds a place laid where he can sit down and try it. The cooks are experienced in the best French traditions and the Legion has its own model farms, run by veterans, to improve the quantity and quality of the army's ordinary rations.

COLUMBIANA, March 23—In cooperation with the school authorities, the Kiwanis club vocational guidance committee, William B. Longshore, chairman, is extending its service to students of Columbiana High school.

He said that in 98 per cent of juvenile cases the home is to blame, and that children who have lost love, the greatest force in the world, become soured on society and drift into evil ways.

The speaker was introduced by Walter McCaughy, program chairman.

A. L. Wells is program chairman for the meeting next Monday evening, which will be Columbiana school night, the program to be presented by school pupils. A large group from the Columbiana club will attend an inter-

Travelers, Garden Clubs Enjoy 'Tour' Of Holland

Sven VanZonneveld of Collegeville, Pa., native of Holland, took the Travelers club and guests, members of the Salem Garden clubs, on a "tour" of the chief bulb-growing district in Holland when he spoke at the Tuesday afternoon session in the public library assembly room.

Mrs. George Bowman, Jr., president of the Travelers club, welcomed the guests and presented the speaker, who is a graduate of the horticultural school in Lisse, Holland. This is his third stay in this country.

This bulb-growing district in Holland lies behind the North sea, between the two historical cities of Haarlem and Leyden, both between sea and seven hundred years old. Haarlem is known as the Flower City, while Leyden is world famous through its university.

The "trip," via colored slides, began with historic buildings in these cities.

Sand dunes protect the bulb district from the North sea, for in many places the fields are below sea level," VanZonneveld said.

Metropolitan Planting

In his description of bulb-growing and the labor involved, the speaker stated that through an ingenious system of ditches, small and larger canals, the level of the ground water is kept at the most favorable level for the development of the bulbs root system.

Before the fields are planted to bulbs, they are hand dug to a depth of 12 to 14 inches. Care is taken that fresh soil comes to the top, he explained.

Harvesting time is in the end of June or the beginning of July, according to the weather, he commented, continuing "hyacinths and tulips come first and are immediately transferred to specially constructed drying sheds, with a heating system enabling us to have the bulbs dry in a couple of days."

Daffodils come last. They are generally graded in the fields and stored in open crates in an open drying shed, where the air can circulate freely, he pointed out.

Scenes from the flower festival was an enjoyable part of the "tour." At blossom time the fields are thrilling to behold, resembling a huge carpet of geometrical patterns, extending for miles in brilliant colors, according to the speaker. They were shown on the slides.

Packing for export starts in the end of August. The bulbs are taken to Rotterdam in inland motor boats, from the various centers in the district, and there are loaded in sea-going vessels.

The bulb industry has been practiced in Holland for 300 years. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Bowman distributed white hyacinths as special prizes. They were awarded Mrs. L. B. Harris, Mrs. John Bauman, Mrs. C. H. Musser, Mrs. C. E. McElwee, Miss Pearl Walker, Mrs. H. C. Hurlburt, Mrs. C. L. Flickinger, Mrs. W. P. Carpenter, Miss Helen Deming, Mrs. Howard Polz, Mrs. Hugh Gieckler, Mrs. Troy Cope, Mrs. C. R. Votaw, Mrs. J. E. Bentley, Mrs. Burt Leeper, Mrs. N. H. Knowlton, Mrs. Ernest Whitaker, L. L. McCullough, Mrs. J. A. Fehr, Mrs. Arthur Vaughan, Mrs. Arthur Yengling and Mrs. W. L. Strain.

The Travelers club will conclude its 1948-49 season with next Tuesday's meeting.

Mrs. VanZonneveld was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bowman last evening.

A gift of $25 was voted to the Sandusky veterans home for a television set.

At the Past Presidents parley session Monday afternoon the members worked on covers for cushions on bedside chairs at the Dayton veterans hospital.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Arthur Rice, Mrs. Ray Reich, Mrs. Carl Buraw, Mrs. A. B. Combs, and Mrs. Donald Johnston.

ings, many of the specific hazards faced by workers will be discussed and remedial methods proposed.

SEES DECLINE IN AVERAGE HOURS IN '49

Labor Department Official Believes Work Week
Will Shorten

BY CHARLES H. HERROLD
WASHINGTON, March 23—(UP)—Ewan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics, said today the country is headed this year for an average industrial work week shorter than 40 hours.

He said the drop will come principally from the further elimination of overtime rather than union pressure for a scheduled work week of 36 or 35 hours. It takes a good deal of overtime in excess of 40 hours to maintain a 40-hour average, because many plants are working short weeks due to lack of business.

Clague said in an interview that the country can have the shorter week without serious unemployment or a great decline in income and purchasing power. He emphasized that he was talking solely about the average hours of work per week put in by manufacturing employees, irrespective of union agreements or negotiations.

But government labor officials said the decline in hours will undoubtedly influence union-management contract negotiations. The question is a major issue with all groups of organized labor.

New Contract
The railroads and 27 non-operating brotherhoods have just negotiated a 40-hour week at no cut in the workers' 48-hour pay, effective next Sept. 1. John L. Lewis has served notice his United Mine Workers want a 30 or 35-hour week in the new contract to start July 1. A permanent AFL committee is studying the feasibility of a new drive for a 30-hour week.

Clague said his bureau will publish figures Friday showing the average work week in February was 39.4 hours. This is the second consecutive month that it has fallen under 40 hours. The 1948 average was 40.1 hours per week.

The wartime peak was 44.2 hours in 1944. The depression low was 34.6 hours in 1934.

Lack of orders was only partly responsible for the shorter work week in February, Clague said.

"The principal reason is elimination of overtime hours," he said. "With prices leveling off below their peaks, employers are cutting out the high cost premium pay hours. There is still considerable overtime in the average work week to cause to hit 39.4 there are many plants running more than a scheduled 40-hour week."

Under the wage-hour law, time and one-half must be paid for all hours over 40 worked in a week. "The trend is downward," Clague said. "There's no telling where it will go and how far it will drop before we get into trouble such as serious unemployment or a sharp decline in purchasing power."

The work week is now 1.1 hours below the corresponding period a year ago. But because of wage boosts, average weekly earnings have gone up nevertheless.

Clague said this indicates that the transition to the shorter work week is being made without wrecking purchasing power. He thinks it can continue.

All worms do not crawl. Span-worms progress in a series of looning strides, because their middle sections have no legs.

Ingrid Not Peeved Over Rowdy Press Conference

ROME, March 23—(AP)—Movie Actress Ingrid Bergman isn't angry about yesterday's riotous press conference. But she is very, very impressed.

"I always knew Italians were very passionate people," she said today. "But I didn't know they were that passionate."

Some 360 newsmen, photographers and gate crashers swarmed over her yesterday when she attempted to hold a news conference in her hotel. Plainly scared, she was rescued from the room. She finally met the reporters, hours later—in small groups.

Miss Bergman is here to collaborate in the production of a movie.

OSU Dean Predicts Much More Serious Teacher Shortage

COLUMBUS, March 23—(AP)—The dean of Ohio State university's college of education predicted today that in 10 years there would be 6,000,000 children for whom no schooling provision has been made.

"There are over four million children not now in school or without regular teachers for their classrooms," said Dr. Donald P. Cottrell. Dean Cottrell spoke to the women's institute, statewide gathering of leaders of women's organizations at Ohio State university.

To the four million now without schooling facilities, said Dean Cottrell, a rapid rise in births will add two million children.

"The schools of the United States will require 1,033,994 new elementary teachers in the decade 1949-1959 through 1958-1959," he said.

These teachers, he said, will be needed to fill new positions, to replace more than 100,000 persons now teaching on sub-standard certificates, to reduce the average class size to 25 and to replace those who quit teaching.

Ohio alone, Dr. Cottrell said, needs 3,000 annually; it now is producing 850.

Dr. John D. Porterfield, state health director, recommended to the institute federal aid to medical schools and additional grants to public health programs. Dr. Porterfield called present public health facilities "inadequate." He recommended increased state aid in tuberculosis facilities, expansion of the state welfare department, expansion of the state medical schools and increased state grants to public health programs.

WATER

fire are not as serious as might be imagined.

With the new water reservoir as an additional backlog, the city uses that storage capacity as a "balance wheel" when usage is unusually severe—as in the case of a fire—and equalizes the over-all supply.

This danger is limited by two factors: (1) the capacity of the fire department to put out water, and (2) the duration of the fire.

Three hours of full capacity pumping is generally considered the maximum effort for a big fire (such as the Grate Motor Co. fire in 1942) and throwing water at a 4,900 gallon a minute (as was the case then), wouldn't endanger the city's supply immediately.

More than one such fire in any short period of time, of course, would severely tax the supply and might require pressure throughout the city. But even in such a case, careful usage of the water could give adequate protection and still maintain regular supplies.

What's the answer? Well, that's what council, the city engineer and other officials are seeking now. Through constant prodding from the local manufacturers, who are gravely concerned, action seems forthcoming.

The general tenor of the engineering surveys made to date has been that Salem needs a surface supply of water. All the surveys, too, have indicated that Salem should go south or southwest to get this supply. Cold Run, near Guilford lake, has been mentioned. The top waters of the Mahoning river have also been considered. So has Guilford lake.

The problem now is to determine the ultimate source, begin progress toward it by drilling a series of wells in adequate fields (to protect as a stop-gap addition to supply as the work is done and lay a pipe line from the eventual surface back.

Quick Relief from Pile Irritation

40 years ago a Buffalo druggist created an ointment to relieve itching, smarting piles. It brought such quick, cooling, soothing, astringent relief that its fame spread across the land making Peterson's Ointment a favorite in thousands of homes. Ask your druggist today for 40c box or 60c applicator tube, Peterson's Ointment delights or money back.

source back to Salem's system. Various engineering and construction angles will have to be achieved. A dam will have to be built. Right of ways will have to be secured and the city will not be allowed to infringe on other communities' supplies.

The project is a long-range one. But the need is severe and action is required soon to allow the project time to develop itself to a point where it can stem the tide of increased range here.

Ashton and a companion, Luman Ramsdell, both of Youngstown, O., were captured here the day after the holdup of a Detroit-bound train near Martinsburg, W. Va.

Ramsdell is recovering in a local hospital from a bullet wound suffered when he tried to shoot it with police here.

Czechs Claim Credit For the Lightning Rod

PRAGUE — Czechs have taken steps to revive the memory of another "neglected Slav scientist" who they said discovered the lightning rod six years before Benjamin Franklin flew his famous kite.

A commemorative service sponsored by 12 scientific organizations honored Prokop Divis. At the meeting, Prof. Julius Stornad not only credited Divis with the lightning rod but said he also was the first to investigate the possibilities of treating disease with electricity and that he had "suspected the possibility of lighting by electricity 130 years before Edison."

Because it takes such an excellent polish, wild cherry timber is in great demand by cabinetmakers.

Mullins Wraps Up City's Class A Title With 49-42 Conquest of VFW

Victory Tuesday Settles 2nd Round Title; Factory Five Had Won 1st Round

Flashing the form that has carried them to 18 wins in 20 previous games, Class A's Mullins Tuesday won the Salem city title by edging a potent VFW five 49-42 at the Memorial building.

The evening was one packed with title games, playoff battles also being run for Class B league championships and the Class C title. The Junior High school 7th and 8th grade champions were also determined at the building Tuesday.

Mullins set the margin in the first quarter Tuesday, stepping into a 12-5 lead before the VFW really got set. The seven point difference existed at halftime, too, 23-16. By the close of the third quarter, however, Mullins had advanced to a 37-24 lead, a bit safer a margin.

Norm Smith, Mullins' most consistent high scorer dumped through 21 points to lead the champs.

The victory actually settles the second round race, Mullins finishing up with 11 victories and one defeat, that administered late in the round by the VFW. The Vets end the round with 10 wins and two losses.

Mullins took the first round in undisputed fashion, thereby automatically becoming Salem city champs.

In Class B's two leagues, the Panthers became Memorial building loop champs by taking Columbiana 25-24 in a thriller. In the High school B league, the Nationals won out 40-28 over the Middies to capture that title. The two winners will now meet in a Class B playoff game at 8 p. m. Friday.

The Orphans wrapped up the Class C title last night 49-13, smothering an important Middle outfit.

In the Junior High league 7-E won the seventh grade title with a 38-5 win over 7-A. Eighth grade champion is 8-E, which won 27-16 from 8-A. A playoff in this title race will be held at 4 p. m. Thursday.

KENTUCKY UNDER FULL STEAM NOW, LACES ILLINOIS

Take Measure of Big Nine Champions 76-47 In NCAA Playoffs

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—It's a revived, rampaging Kentucky basketball team that will defend its NCAA championship in Seattle, Wash., Saturday against defense-minded Oklahoma A. and M.

Twenty-four hours ago Coach Adolph Kupp feared his magnificent senior quintet, the nation's top-ranked combine, might have "played itself out" and reached the end of its triumphant trial.

But these qualms vanished, the Blue Grass courts master said, when he saw his Wildcats crush Illinois' Big Nine titlists, 76-47, last night to win the eastern NCAA playoffs.

Led by Alex Groza, the big All-American center who pitched in 27 points, Kentucky just toyed with the mid-westerners and won breezily before a Madison Square Garden crowd of 15,126.

The Kentucky coach said he became alarmed about his team when it dropped a lackluster 67-56 decision to Loyola of Chicago in the quarter-finals of the National Invitation tournament last week.

His worries were not relieved, he added, when his proteges won over Villanova, 83-72, Monday night in the semifinals of the eastern NCAA tournament.

"The 67 points that Loyola got were the most scored against one of my teams in 26 years," he said. "Then Villanova came along and topped that with 72."

In the consolation game, Villanova held Yale's fabulous Tony Lavelli to a single field goal in trouncing the Eli, 78-67. Paul Arising rang in 22 points for the Philadelphians.

SKETCHES GIVEN OF CLASS B FOES IN COLUMBUS EVENT

By JIM DAILY

COLUMBUS, March 23—(UP)—Thumbnails sketches of Class B state tournament teams:

DELPHOS ST. JOHNS—Coach Dick Bechtel is a graduate of Brooklyn St. Johns of New York metropolitan fame. He also brought Lima St. Johns to the Class B state tourney in 1944 so he likes the St. Johns name.

Captain Dave Schmelzer, 6-2 forward, is the high corner of the outfit with 510 points. Schmelzer wears glasses off the floor but not on it, and his mates say he can't see ten feet without them.

Other tall boys are Dick Honingford, 6-7, at center and Tom Brennan, 6-3, at forward. Bechtel favors speed above all else and likes the some defense. Delphos beat Toledo Central Catholic, Class A, tourney contender, by 14 points in a benefit game at Toledo. Delphos lost three games this season.

NEW LEXINGTON—Coach Lin Lewis is a graduate of Capital University at Columbus. New Lex won the Muskingum Valley league championship and figured once it had beaten Junction City, Perry county champs, it couldn't help but go to Columbus. Star of the club is Bill Wollenberg, 6-1, 185-pound center, who scored almost 500 points for the season. Bob Penrod, at 5-7, was chosen All-League forward. The only other 6-foot regular besides Wollenberg is Bull Dusenberry, a fine floor-man at guard. Lewis likes the deliberate attack but says his team can also move when it has to. Uses both zone and pressure-type defense featuring man-to-man. One loss mars New Lex's record.

NORTH CANTON—Coach Clyde Vanaman, graduate of Mt. Union, is in his third year at North Canton. During that time he has won 62 while losing 17. The Stark county team won the Class B championship in 1939 and is the only team back from last year's championship field. George Hamilton, the number one substitute on the 1948 team, is the key man this year. He scored 117 points in seven tourney games this time out. He is 6-1. The other tall boy on the club is Center Dave Mathie, 6-3. The Cantonians lost six games this season while winning 22.

LOCKLAND WAYNE—Coached by Joe Martin, graduate of the University of Cincinnati. He's the only coach Lockland, an all-Negro school, has ever had. Lockland lost to Hamilton, Class A contender, by a score of 39 to 36, and Hamilton Coach Warren Scholler admits Lockland is the toughest his club has faced all year. It was Lockland's only loss, and many experts claim the Cincinnatians are a near-cinch to take the Class B title. Martin says his team has no such over six feet. Center Lee Bennett is just that. The outfit features passing and coolness, and doesn't run too fast, according to Martin.

Lockland has the best offensive record, 60 point average, and best defensive record, 31 point average, of any tournament team.

GOPsters Betting Truman Will Veto Own Labor Act

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—There's some private betting going on at the Capitol that President Truman will veto the "administration substitute" for the Taft-Hartley act when it finally comes from congress.

The bets are being offered by cocky Republicans who say that if the breaks continue to come their way the Truman Democrats won't recognize their own baby when a GOP-Southern Democrat coalition gets through with it.

John L. Lewis helped opponents of the Taft-Hartley repealer when he called his miners out of the pits. The 10-to-1 vote of the senate interior committee approving the long-delayed nomination of James Boyd as director of the bureau of mines is a sample of how congress telling the folks privately he doesn't want to run for President again. Anyhow, under that curious Alphonse-Gaston arrangement which has prevailed in Ohio since 1940, it's Bricker's turn.

Bricker, who got the vice presidential nomination in 1944, says he has no illusions about his chances of getting the top GOP nomination. He will be 58 in 1952. Taft will be 62.

When President Truman shakes up his cabinet, about the last people to hear about it are Senator J. Howard McGrath, the Democratic national chairman, and William Boyle, the committee's executive assistant.

McGrath and Boyle learned from the newspapers that James Forrestal was out and Louis Johnson was in as secretary of defense.

McGrath continues to be top man in passing on patronage channeled through the national committee. Boyle takes care of the minor jobs. But Truman doesn't seem to think it's any of the committee's business when he picks cabinet members.

City Seeks Cheap Horses

PITTSBURGH—The city law department was in a dilemma over how it could purchase legally a pair of work horses at a bargain price.

The two horses belonged to the late Dr. L. H. Mayer, Jr., of Timber Top Farm, near Ligonier, Pa. His widow refused to sell the horses separately because they were brothers, although she had been offered a total of $3,000 for the pair from separate bidders.

She offered them to the city for $700. But the law doesn't allow the purchase of anything over $500 without first accepting bids.

Councilman Frederic C. Weir asked the legal department to see whether it was all right to buy one horse one day for $350 and buy the other the next day for another $350.

The way it looks now, Senator John W. Bricker might be Ohio Republicans' favorite son for the 1952 Presidential nomination.

Senator Robert A. Taft, up for reelection as senator in 1950, keeps Johnston's nomination started Republicans grumbling in the senate cloakrooms that Truman was paying off his campaign aides. Johnston raised campaign dough when others found it too tough a job.

Johnston's air mindedness probably saved him from a real fight against confirmation by the Republicans. Some GOP senators who think he will plug airpower called off the grumblers.
